

Are you interested in doing a PhD in migrant mental health?

PhD Studentship in Migrant Mental Health

University of Kent - Centre for Health Service Studies and Kent and Medway Medical School

Funded by NIHR ARC KSS

If you are looking to study further for a postgraduate research degree (full-time or part-time) we are interested in receiving applications for a PhD studentship covering fees and Stipend from people enthusiastic about:

the health beliefs, perceptions of and experiences with access to mental health care from the perspective of migrant communities in the Kent area.

The studentship is open to all who have completed a postgraduate training course at Masters level or equivalent. We particularly encourage applications from those with professional practice experience.

Further details on funding, how to apply and a link to the online application system visit the University of Kent scholarship page: Scholarships search - University of Kent
